

Chad Tyson
Vice President, Construction

Chad joined the company in 1995 as a carpenter apprentice. With his technical expertise and strong management skills, he quickly proved himself a leader which paved the way for his current role. As vice president, construction, he oversees field staffing and operations, maintains safety and quality control on-site and supports our project teams and innovative construction methods.

Seeing an opportunity to offer greater value and efficiency to our clients, Chad has been instrumental in strategically recruiting and developing our self-perform and prefabrication crews. He closely oversees the Blach workshop and all equipment, tools and fleet of iconic yellow trucks. Additionally, he ensures we have the necessary resources to staff our current and upcoming projects and focuses heavily on succession planning, providing the proper training to the next generation of Blach superintendents. Chad also provides high-level support for project teams, working closely with project executives and the Leadership Team.

Under Chad's watchful eye, Blach has continued to hold its place as a statewide leader in safety and innovation. We have received multiple awards from the Associated General Contractors (AGC) of America Construction Safety Excellence and have been named a Cal-OSHA Voluntary Protection Program (VPP) Contractor. Chad is actively involved in maintaining the company's strong industry and union ties, having previously served as the Chairman of the Santa Clara/San Benito Carpenter's Training Committee for Northern California 5.
