

Dan Rogers President

Dan joined Blach in 2001 and by the time he became President in 2017, he had made tremendous strides in developing the firm's operations infrastructure and service offerings. During his tenure, he has led expansion efforts into new markets and geographical areas, adding notable clients that include world-renowned and award-winning tech and biomedical pioneers, universities and institutions, venture capital firms and several Bay Area developers. Additionally, under his leadership, the company has been recognized consistently as a Top

Contractor by Engineering News Record (ENR) of California and a Best Place to Work by Blach employees, as reported in the Silicon Valley Business Journal. These awards are on top of several notable project and safety awards from the likes of the Associated General Contractors, ENR and the Silicon Valley Business Journal, to name a few.

A highly engaged, strategic and decisive leader, Dan has a thorough command of construction and a high degree of foresight. He is committed to ensuring Blach employees have the support required to enjoy success and expand expertise while finding new and innovative ways to provide greater value to clients.

One such way is Folia. Developed in collaboration with Quattrocchi Kwok Architects and Gregory P. Luth and Associates, the award-winning Folia is a revolutionary and turnkey pre-engineered building solution, much of which is prefabricated in Blach's own, on-site workshop, another endeavor that Dan advocated.

Since joining Blach from Stanford University Capital Planning & Management, where he managed the University's $500M building program, including educational, athletics, housing and infrastructure improvements, Dan has been active in a number of industry and community organizations. He is a member of the Associated General Contractors (AGC) and sits on the boards of the Boys & Girls Club of Silicon Valley and the Air Systems Foundation. As a testament to his ongoing accomplishments, Dan was named one of Silicon Valley's "40 Under 40" in 2007 and "COO of the Year" in 2017.

Dan has a degree in Construction Management from California State University, Chico and began his professional career with Summerhill Homes before transitioning into commercial construction.

Education

B.S., Construction Management
California State University, Chico

Affiliations

Associated General Contractors (AGC)
Community College Facility Coalition (CCFC)
Coalition for Adequate School Housing (CASH)
Central YMCA Board
Air Systems Foundation
Board Vice President, Boys & Girls Club of Silicon Valley

Awards

40 Under 40, 2007, Silicon Valley Business Journal
COO of the Year, 2017, Silicon Valley Business Journal