

Laura Bold
Vice President, Finance

Laura began her career at an oil and gas investment firm and transitioned into the construction industry when she joined Blach Construction in 1996. Displaying unparalleled management skills, she worked her way from staff accountant to her current role as vice president, finance where she oversees accounting, finance and risk management.

Laura's close attention to detail and proactive nature has been vital to Blach's success in this complex market, poising the firm for fast-paced growth. Over the years she has made several significant contributions to the firm, including initiating and overseeing the upgrade to Blach's accounting and forecasting systems and processes to more accurately report and record backlog. Additionally, she was instrumental in developing Blach's award-winning online timecard, payroll and job cost-reporting program. Most notably, Laura's meticulous accounting and finance expertise has enabled Blach to expand, creatively financing project operations via company profitability, without incurring any debt.

Laura is a member of the Construction Financial Management Association, the 2005 recipient of the prestigious YWCA of Santa Clara Valley "Tribute to Women and Industry" (TWIN) award and received a degree in accounting from Santa Clara University.

Education

B.S., Accounting
Santa Clara University

Affiliations

Construction Financial Management Association

Awards

Tribute to Women and Industry (TWIN), 2005, YWCA of Santa Clara Valley