

Alex Llerena CFO

Alex Llerena brings to Blach more than three decades of experience leading financial and operational strategy for large, multinational companies, primarily in the construction industry. His proven track record of success in navigating change and expansion is ideally suited to positively influence our continued growth. As CFO, he is integral to overall firm operations and directly oversees all finance, accounting and tax-related initiatives.

Prior to joining Blach, Alex served as the CFO for W. Bradley Electric, a mid-sized electrical contractor in the Bay Area. Before that, he spent 16 years at Bechtel, where he held several international executive leadership roles. These included CFO/Principal VP and Ethics & Compliance Officer for Bechtel's Mining and Metals Global Business Unit in Santiago, Chile, General Manager of Bechtel Business Services and Head of International Tax. Alex also led the international tax groups for Oracle Corporation and Cemex, S.A.B. de C.V., a multi-billion-dollar, multi-national building materials company based in Mexico. During his tenure at Cemex, he spent two years in the Philippines as Vice President of Finance and Administration for a company subsidiary.

Alex began his financial career at PwC after graduating from Rutgers University with a B.S. in Accounting. He later earned his M.P.A. Taxation and M.B.A., Finance, both from the University of Texas at Austin. Fluent in both English and Spanish, he is a member of the American Institute of Certified Public Accountants (AICPA) and a certified public accountant (inactive).
